Leadership Resilience Toolkit

Leadership Resilience

“It is in times of crisis that true leaders emerge”

Covid-19 has changed the world we knew. New norms are in place everywhere and everyone is dealing with their own challenges. In times of crisis, we look up to our leaders to keep organisation afloat. Employees need steady leadership the most – but that’s also when it is most difficult to lead.

Resilient leaders are the need of the hour.

This toolkit includes the following material:

Benefits of having resilient leaders

Framework: 5 Leadership Resilience Themes

Guiding questions & tips for practical application

Purpose & Benefits

This toolkit is targeted at business leaders and HR leaders alike, as they prepare for the new normal post pandemic.

We recognise that most businesses will be fighting hard focusing on immediate priorities as they battle through a pandemic and the resultant economic turbulence. As a result, they may not be able to pause, look ahead and plan for future.

This toolkit is a ready reckoner that will enable HR practitioners to diagnose and solve organisational challenges across various dimensions including strategic and operational people priorities.

Why Build Resilient Leaders?

There are times of uncertainty and challenge that every organisation must face. And at such times the responsibility falls on the leaders to guide the organisation through the tough time. How leaders behave at times like this has a lasting impact not only the organisation but also on the people.

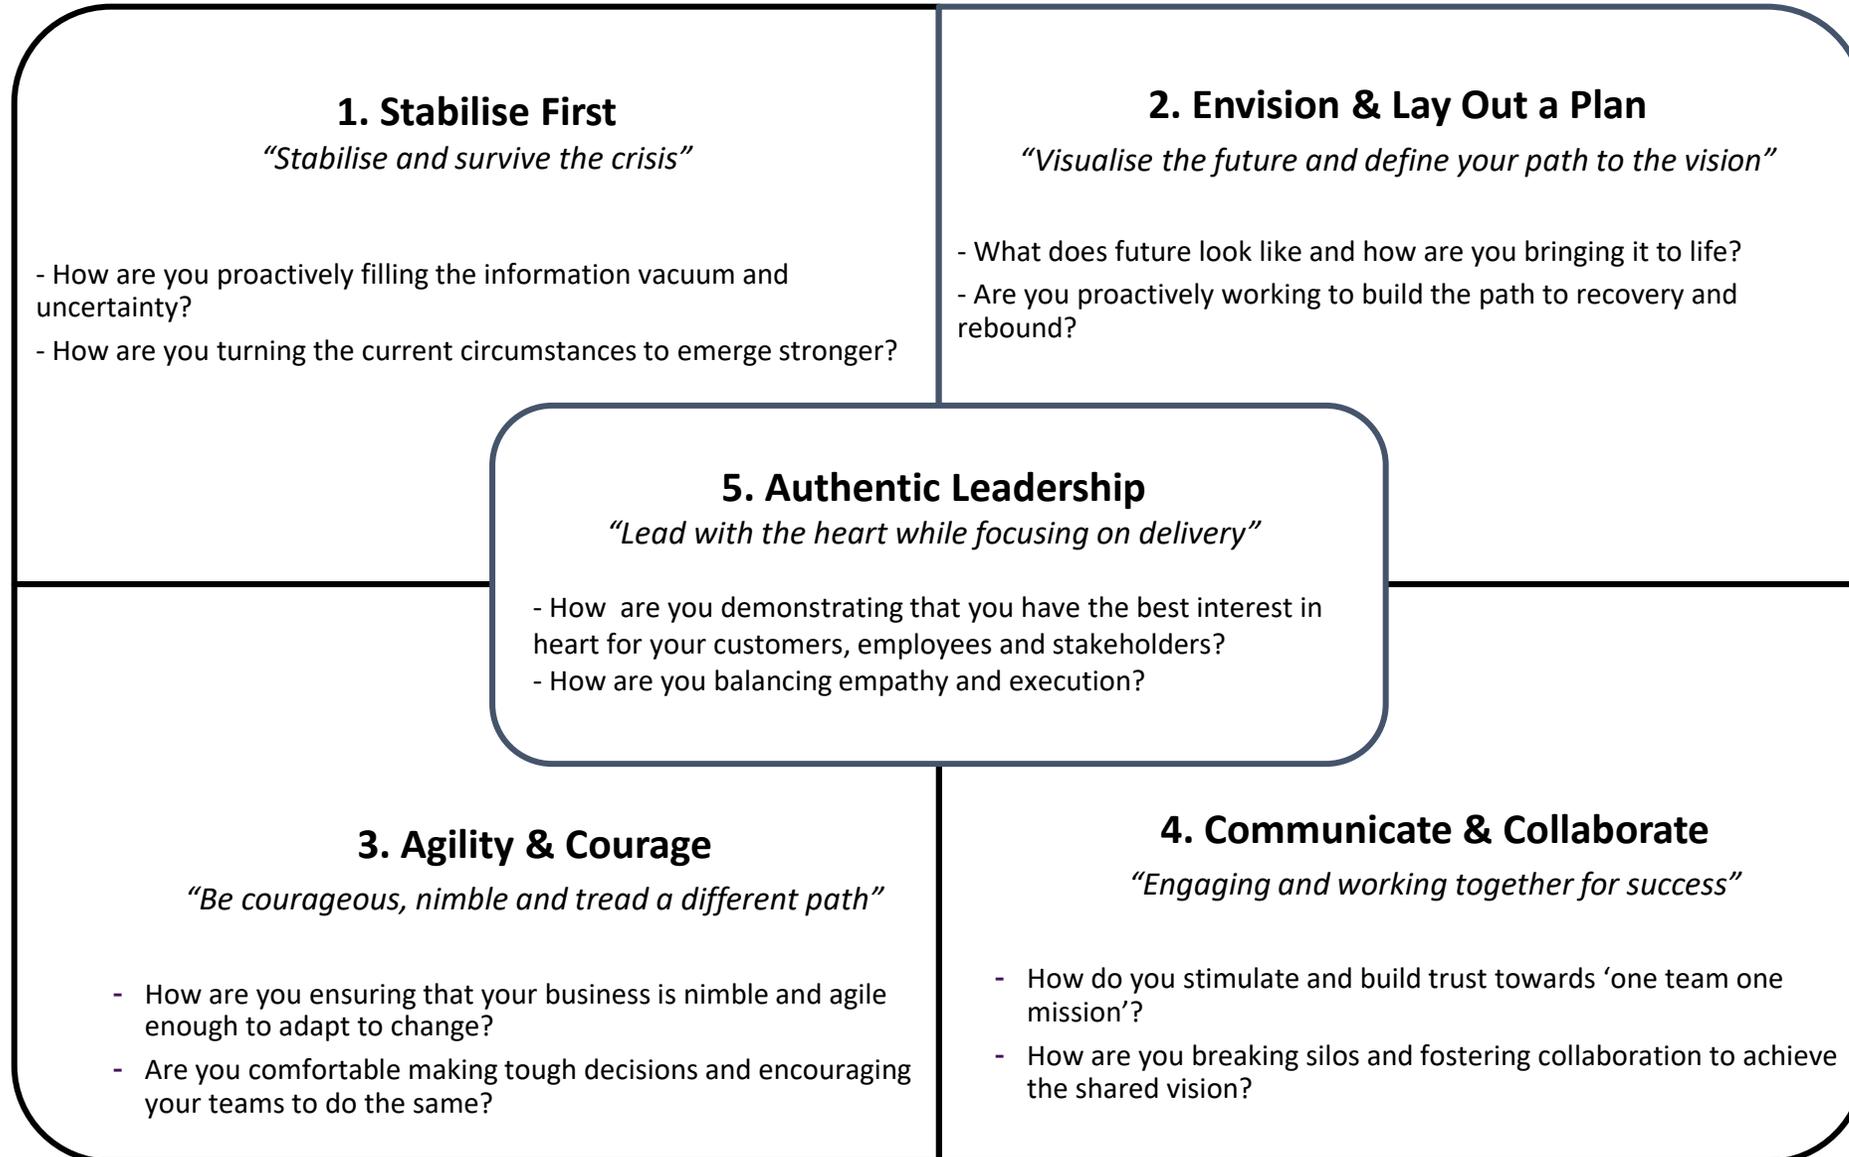

This is when Resilient Leaders shine.

Resilience is defined as the ability to bounce back from setbacks or to thrive during times of challenge. Resilience can be learnt and practiced.

It's a skill and people talk about developing the 'resilience muscle'

5 Resilient Leadership themes

Stabilize First: Stabilize and survive the crisis

Resilient leaders have the ability to recognise early on that the organization is facing a crisis and they start to mount a response.

They are not dependent on predefined response plans but can react to situations as they develop.

What can leaders do

Institute crisis and business continuity plan

Engage with key customers and reinforce loyalty

Understand impact/liability and formulate response

Recognise the need to transform

Establish a survival plan for operations

Envision & Lay Out a Plan: Visualize the future and define your path

Resilient leaders do not wait for the crisis to be over to plan for future - they plan for it in the midst of the crisis. And to do that right, leaders need to have a longer-term vision: a north star that will focus and help shape their thinking about the short and the mid-term.

What can leaders do

- Focus on what your customers will require in the future
- Explore how you will meet their new and evolving demands
- Consider both threats and opportunities
- Based on what you learn, adjust your vision and strategy
- Engage the leadership team for this kind of thinking
- Rally the team around your vision

Resilient leaders take decisive and speedy actions with courage and based on imperfect/incomplete information.

Employees and stakeholders expect them to be clear, decisive and courageous while making the right decisions.

What can leaders do

Gather relevant information

Identify alternatives/options and weigh them

Identify the possible outcomes and make the decision

Communicate your decision with your team

Move on!

To be an effective leader, one of the key factors is to be able to build trust and engage your team so that they will be motivated to work hard towards a common goal that is align with the organisation's mission and vision.

It is essential to have trust in a team for them to perform their best as there is no barrier within themselves and it creates psychological safety.

What can leaders do

Lead by example and affirm with action

Authenticity counts a lot - be honest and sincere

Communicate openly, simply and frequently

Enable new ways of communication and connection

Distill meaning from chaos

Listen & encourage input

Authentic Leadership: Lead with the heart while focusing on delivery

Resilient leaders understand that recovery is a HUMAN experience.

Such leaders demonstrate empathy and focus on building relationships.

Resilient leaders not only demonstrate empathy but open themselves to others and remain attentive to the well-being of self and others

What can leaders do

Know yourself

Learn to connect

Be discreet

Play to your strengths

Keep requesting feedback

Tips

Steps leaders can take to build resilience

1 Find Your Purpose

Resilient Leaders are guided by their passion or a principle that they believe in. Seek out what drives you .

3 Communicate Powerfully

Resilient Leaders will build a strong and powerful communication style that is unique to themselves. Work towards building your own communication style that will help others understand change, expectations and new directions.

2 Develop Positive Relationships

When times are tough, leaders will need a support network to see them through. Work towards building strong teams, trusting colleagues and mentors.

4 Be Flexible

Resilient Leaders are open to change. They accept that change is inevitable, and flexibility is key to adapting. They are open to changing themselves with the need of the time and can learn from mistakes.

Steps leaders can take to build resilience

5 Be Decisive

Do not wait for perfect information. Practice making swift and resolute decisions. Reconcile the paradox of pause & action.

6 Be Humble & Coachable

Be open to feedback and have a continued urge to grow and develop. Make seeking and providing open honest feedback a motto.

7 Care for Self & Others

Acknowledge that it is a tough time and you and others may be stressed. Make wellbeing a priority.

8 Celebrate Success

Celebrate small milestones and success. Train the mind to look for success rather than dwelling on negativity or failure.
